

A Critical Review of Bilingualism in the Context of Media and Journalism Practices

With Dr. Jessica Retis

This talk addresses reflections on decade-long research on professional practices and journalism education in the United States. For more than two centuries, bilingual media has been part of the American landscape, but until recently there was no academic instruction offered to professionals working for this fast-growing segment of our society.

Dr. Jessica Retis is a Full Professor in the School of Journalism and Director of the new Master's in Bilingual Journalism at the University of Arizona. She is affiliated Faculty with the UA's Center for Latin American Studies and the Human Rights Practice Program. Her areas of research include Latin America, international migration, diasporas and transnational communities; cultural industries; ethnic media; diversity and the media; Latino media in Europe, North America and Asia; bilingual journalism, journalism studies, and journalism education.
